Nomination to? (Team or Individual)	Team
Reason for nomination	This team was outstandingly creative in many ways. They impressed the appraisers immediately with the ingenuity of their costumes, particularly Big Foot. Each member of the team adopted the persona, look and attitude of a different mythical being and kept in character throughout the performance. Their use of math and physics in solving their experiment was clever. Incorporated into their story was an impressive replica of a Great Trireme, made of recycled puzzle pieces.

Nomination to? (Team or Individual)	Team
Reason for nomination	This team traveled round the world losing team members and team managers on its way to Egypt and finally back to Yorktown High for the March 1st DI competition. And while you have to suffer to sing the blues, this team's blues number blew us away. Under the Egyptian sun the performance pyramided to new heights overcoming all obstacles to receive the Spirit of DI Award.

Reason for nomination	The team surprised the appraisers by using their improvisational skills to create an amazing and surprising story from an ordinary chore. Their use of human scenery was incredible! They took a miniature world and made it life-sized to enthrall a mesmerized audience. WOW! Whoever saw a pinball machine come to life?

Reason for nomination	This five-member team, in its first year of competition, showed great teamwork, support of others, sharing of ideas, lots of smiles, laughs and fun. They were positive and supportive of each other, and listened to each other with equal participation. Their level of team cohesiveness was very high for a first year team, and all had leadership skills. Obviously, this was the result of great coaching. We are proud of their work and creative use of materials

Reason for nomination	In DI've Got a Secret! The optical illusion as a required element. We saw many very effective optical illusions but there was one real swash buckling performance that had us grabbing at our peg legs, our black eye patches and our sides with laughter. The team impressed us with their observations of human behavior in therapy; their bright and creative costumes, especially the parrot; their use of imitation of famous historical pirate figures, but most particularly the optical illusion of the captain walking up and down stairs, riding an elevator and an escalator.

Reason for nomination	What an interesting journey we took with this special team! We started in London at their 100% recyclable, well-designed and executed Tower of London that blew us “out of the box.” We then traveled with the team on their massive sailing ship, complete with a raisable sail and a very “punny” first mate to the Bermuda Triangle. Accompanied by original song and dance, fabulous teamwork, demonstration of months of research, and hard work, this team’s flawless performance was truly a DI experience!

Reason for nomination	This team went above and beyond with their multi-use curtain that created the illusion of a real stage. The curtains opened on Japan, but when they closed it became the backdrop for an amazing puppet show. This team went to the max embodying a high sense of professionalism and unimaginable creativity.

Reason for nomination	Let's take time to sing the praises of unsung heroes! In the face of weather forecasts of 100% probability of snow, and cancellations of SAT exams and basketball games throughout the district, Yorktown's operations staff ASSURED us that our tournament would go ahead on schedule. In addition to their usual duties—working with us the night before to set up and all during the tournament day—these intrepid men arrived at 5 am to plow the parking lot, clear the walkways, and ready the premises for the arrival of 538 DIers, their team managers, parents and supporters. Every year we realize that we could not run this tournament without these men. This year, let us take time to thank them in a special way—and to acknowledge that they truly embody THE SPIRIT OF DI!
